CULTURAL DIRECTIONS

Dahlias and gourds both require a sunny location, dahlias a heavy medium soil, while gourds, rather sandy and well drained. Plant when danger of frosts are over. Standard fertilizers are more convenient to use than stable dressing. For best results, thoroughly working the soil, is very essential. When insect pests appear, use advertised formulas, as directed. The D.D.T.'s and Rotenone's are used extensively. All tubers and seeds are strictly guaranteed. On dahlia orders west of the Mississippi, add four cents to the price of each tuber. Seeds are mailed prepaid. Further information is cheerfully given.
